AURORA TURNS TELEGRAPHER

Borealis Current Used to Send Messages Over Commercial Wire

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)

PITTSFIELD (Mass.) Jan. 27.—C. O. Flint, manager of the Western Union office in this city, said telegrams were sent between Pittsfield and Springfield, fifty miles away, yesterday, by a free current from the aurora borealis which sometimes ran as high as 125 volts. No battery current was used during part of the day.
